

THE LADY ENGINEERS BOOT CAMP- (2023)

Opening Remarks - 7th October, 2023

Good morning everyone,

I am thrilled to welcome you all to this exciting Lady Engineers Boot Camp. Today is a celebration of talent, innovation, and the power of diversity in engineering and technology. At this meeting, we have aspiring engineers, accomplished professionals, and future trailblazers, all gathered with a common goal: “to empower and uplift women in the field of engineering”. Before I go any further, allow me to express my sincere gratitude to our sponsors; Village Savers Limited, Mr Mwansa and Mr Musonda. I also thank our distinguished speakers, moderator and all participants gathered today.

As we begin this journey together, I want to emphasize the incredible potential that lies within each of you. Your presence here today is a testament to your dedication, your curiosity, and your drive to excel in the world of engineering. We recognize that women have made remarkable strides in engineering and technology, breaking barriers, and achieving extraordinary feats. Yet, we also acknowledge that there is more work to be done to ensure more representation in these fields.

This boot camp is not just about learning skills; it's about fostering a community of support, mentorship, and collaboration. It's about creating an environment where your voices are heard, your ideas are valued, and your achievements are celebrated. Throughout the program, you will have the opportunity to engage with inspiring speakers, participate in this enriching workshop, and connect with your fellow engineers. I encourage you to seize every moment, ask questions, challenge assumptions, and most importantly, support one another.

Remember, each one of you has the potential to shape the future of engineering and technology. By being here today, you are already making a significant impact. So, let's make the most of this day, and let's pave the way for a more inclusive and innovative future. Together, we can break down barriers and build bridges to success.

Thank you for being here, and let's make this Lady Engineers Boot Camp an unforgettable experience.

Let the journey begin!
